Why the Sankofia Sovereign Bond Exists

SNKF · The Republic of Sankofia · 40 Acre Trust

The Sankofia Sovereign Bond (SNKF) is a development instrument created to finance the establishment of the Republic of Sankofia — a sovereign-chartered homeland on the Atlantic coast of West Africa, built by and for Foundational Black Americans, the descendants of those enslaved in the United States.

A Real Charter

Sankofia operates under a host-country Charter Act granting autonomous administration, an independent judiciary, and tax, customs, and banking authority. The host nation retains sovereignty, defense, and foreign affairs. The concession runs 99 years, renewable, with ICSID arbitration protection.

A Real Structure

- 40 Acre Trust serves as perpetual guardian of the Charter.
- A Zone Authority administers utilities, courts, registry, and finance.
- Parliament is established early to provide legislative oversight.
- A fixed timetable in the Charter transitions governance to an elected Foundational Black American citizen government. No personal monarchy, no permanent personal rule.

A Real Funding Model

Charter & legal	30%	Charter Act drafting, ECOWAS counsel, arbitration framing
Land acquisition	25%	Coastal concession deposit, title work, survey
Infrastructure feasibility	20%	Water, power, and port access engineering studies
Zone Authority standup	10%	Courts, registry, banking groundwork
Compliance & reporting	8%	Filings, audit, transfer agent
Operations & outreach	7%	Staff, diaspora engagement

A Real Supply Discipline

- Fixed supply. The contract contains no mint function after deployment — the supply cannot be increased.
- Founding team allocation vests over four years behind a one-year cliff.
- The 40 Acre Trust allocation is locked for five years; the Host Community Fund vests over four years with host-nation governance.
- Allocation locks are enforced by on-chain vesting contracts, publicly verifiable at any time.

What SNKF Is Not

SNKF does not confer citizenship of the Republic of Sankofia. It does not convey title to land. It does not promise a return, a price, or an exchange listing. Sankofian citizenship is additive and is granted through the Charter's citizenship process — never through the purchase of a token.

Any person offering guaranteed profit, guaranteed land, or citizenship in exchange for SNKF is not acting for the Republic.

Sequence and Authorization

Zero SNKF tokens exist today. None will be created until a host-nation Charter Act is executed and the offering is qualified with the United States Securities and Exchange Commission. This mirrors the standard applied across the 40 Acre Trust ecosystem: authorization first, deployment second.
